

English for football – week 29

Merry-go-round

Today we will talk about the phrase 'merry-go-round'. A merry-go-round is of course the fairground attraction where people get on a revolving 'merry-go-round' and then off again. Very often in football at the end of the season, managers lose their jobs or resign and move to other clubs. This can start a merry-go-round where one manager takes the place of another manager who then moves on to another club. Recently, Sam Allardyce has moved from Bolton to Newcastle, Has he started this year's managers' merry-go-round?
