

English for Football – week 6

To come from behind

This week's English for football is come from behind. Now, this phrase is quite simple as it originally means to win after being behind in a race. This season Liverpool's opponents have taken the lead three times in the last five games, but Liverpool have won the matches. They have come from behind three times. The phrase is sometimes used to say that a team is lucky, but also to say that a team has a good spirit and never gives up. To come from behind.
