

English for Football – week 25

To be in free fall

This week's English for football expression from languagecaster is the phrase to be in free fall which means to have lost control and in football is used to describe the situation when a team loses many games in a row and dramatically drops down the table. So, Hull City in the Premier League have lost six games in a row and are in free fall, while Newcastle are also in free fall after a winless run of 8 games. To be in free fall.
